

Nobuhiko Takeichi

Senior Executive Officer,
Deputy Senior General Manager,
Regional Revitalization and Development
Headquarters, JR West

Mr. Nobuhiko Takeichi graduated from the Department of Civil Engineering, Faculty of Engineering, Kyoto University in 1989, and joined West Japan Railway Company in the same year.

Since joining the company, he has held a range of positions in the planning and investment divisions as well as the construction division, where he has been involved in railway infrastructure and urban development projects.

His experience in railway infrastructure includes the development of new railway lines (both Shinkansen and conventional lines), construction of new stations, railway elevation and undergrounding, and station improvement projects.

Since 2022, he has served as an executive officer responsible for railway infrastructure projects and urban development initiatives, including station building developments at major hub stations, such as Osaka Station, Kyoto Station, and Hiroshima Station. In this role, he has been promoting Transit-Oriented Development leveraging railway network.
