

Baptiste Tripard

Managing Director, SenseFly

Baptiste is an aeronautics engineer and an entrepreneur.

After a short experience in project financing, he joined in 2009 a start-up in France that designs and produces small jet engines (the DGEN Family) dedicated to the general aviation. He worked there as an Executive Manager and helped define the global strategy of the company (international development in Brazil and in the United States, technical and industrial partnerships), as well as design the company's organization in order to be compliant with the certification standards.

In 2012, he joined SenseFly, a Parrot company, in order to manage the development of the company in the YUS and is now managing senseFly's North American subsidiary. He is also a Board Member of the Small UAV Coalition.
